April 28th Meeting : "What's Hot, What's Not"

Remember our fun field trip last August to Ball Seed? We saw all those wonderful new plant varieties they try out, right near our own backyards. How many of us went home saying, I wish I knew about that plant when I was planning my garden in the spring! Here's some help for that.

Susan Schmitz will be sharing the newest trends in plant varieties with us this month. Susan is the Trials and Education Manager at Ball Seed. She's been a horticulturalist for over 30 years, after graduating from Ohio State University with a Landscape Horticulture/Floriculture degree. She then topped that off with an MBA in Marketing from DePaul. She's worked at Callaway Gardens in Georgia, and at the Oak Park Conservatory. She's taught at both Triton College and Morton Arboretum. In her spare time, she assists her husband as a hobby beekeeper!

Also at the meeting - pansy plugs will be available at very low prices!

From our friend Lorraine Biang in Indiana:

Dear Elaine, I read the news letter with interest and longing to be a part of activities. I've been here in W Lafayette over a year now and am still trying to be a gardener. My frontage is a tall, tall red oak woods with ivy growing up trees and covering ground except down by creek, where a few wild flowers will show up. My flower beds are a terraced area NW side of garage with a few giant hosta in place. Against a fence in somewhat sunny location I grew the most expensive tomatoes in Tippecanoe County. After buying a special planter that held three tomato plants, the first tomatoes all had end rot. The next had something that looked like anthracnose. I did get a few edible fruits. The squash grew beautiful flowers but no fruit. Same for green peppers until I realized there were no bees and spent the end of the summer flitting from flower to flower making like a bee. I added astilbe, coral bells and a sambucco niger to giant hostas. The next month should show me what the deer don't like.

Your programs sound inviting and I wish I could be there. My best to all my gardening friends.

Lorraine

News from Kruse by Angie & Billie, Kruse House Garden Coordinators

After a major cleanup at the Kruse garden, two truckloads of branches, leaves, and garden debris were hauled away. Spring bulbs started pushing out of the ground, many seemingly appearing overnight. The daffodil buds are starting to open; some so rounded and plump as if saying they are happy in their location. Somewhere in the back of memory was a glimmer of a poem about daffodils. Punching in “daffodils poem” Google came through with the most well-known poem on daffodils.

Daffodils

I wonder'd lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host of golden daffodils...

By William Wordsworth [1804]

Over 200 years ago, William, at the age of 34, admired a flower that we still see in our gardens. Actually, the daffodil name is recorded from the 16th century, the name, aphodile from Medieval Latin. Just think, King Henry VIII of England, strolled and admired it in his gardens, and called it Lent lily or daffydow dilly. Other names are narcissus, jonquil, fleur de coucou, perillon. In Wales it is the national emblem.

Daffodils belong to the Amaryllis family, over 50 species, many hybrids, and many colors. They can be white, yellow, green, pink, peach, orange, and an almost red. Some are extremely fragrant, growing in multiple clusters on one stem. Some appear almost with the last snow, while others open so much later. A true daffodil has a long trumpet in the center, like in the old varieties “King Alfred” and the exquisite white “Thalia”. A narcissus has tiny petals that form a small bowl in the center, such as in the beautiful old “Poet’s Daffodil”. And if it is yellow, just call it jonquil.

Daffodils symbolize the arrival of spring, friendship and new beginnings. At the Kruse Garden, the golden daffodils are trumpeting amid the blue grape hyacinths planted more than 60 years ago. Are they a “new beginning” or an “old beginning” beginning again?

PLANT SALE UPDATE by Tom Fessler and Billie Childress

Potting Parties Huge thanks to all who helped pot plants for the sale. Potting is a crucial step of our sale process and many members stepped up to accomplish this big job! Approximately 40 different people worked at cutting, pot preparation, potting, labeling, transporting, and watering hundreds of plants. Many folks worked at several of the potting parties. This task could not have been done without all your help! You are a skilled and generous bunch to work with - and you're fun, too! It was a pleasure to work with you all!

The potting party scheduled for Saturday April 23 has been rescheduled for Saturday, April 30, 9-12. We needed another week for the plants to come up and grow a bit. We have contacted those signed up for the session but apologize for any confusion this may cause.

After potting parties, the focus will be on final preparations for the sale. You can still help out (and earn Garden Dollars). Please look this over to see where you will help out, then sign up at the April meeting.

Childress & Horton Gardens featured in the Garden Conservancy's Open Days Program 22 May 2011

Two of our most experienced gardeners have been invited to open their gardens on Sunday, May 22nd, during the Garden Conservancy's Western Suburbs Open Days Program. The mission of the Garden Conservancy is "to preserve exceptional American gardens for the education and enjoyment of the public." As noted on their website:

ACORN HOLLOW

The Garden Conservancy's Open Days Program offers hundreds of opportunities to learn and exchange gardening ideas - or to simply explore and enjoy magnificent gardens not normally open to the public. The 2011 Open Days season begins in late March and extends into early November. It includes more than 300 private gardens in eighteen states, from southern California to the coastline of Rhode Island.

The Western Suburbs tour features 5 gardens from Inverness to Barrington Hills, Bartlett to West Chicago. See descriptions and a map here:

<http://www.gardenconservancy.org/opendays/open-days-schedule/openday/367-chicagos-western-suburbs>. Lou's garden, Acorn Hollow, and Billie's garden, Glenelg, are certainly highlights of the tour.

GLENELG

With the plant sale the day before the tour, and the mid-spring timing, these gardeners are really being gracious to open their gardens, and we wish them all the best.

Tickets are only $5 per garden, and no reservations are necessary. So take a break from your own yardwork and support our fellow club members by stopping by between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Growing, learning and educating since 1979...

Thanks to these supporters of our Plant Sale!

This year the Garden Club must pay for the large tent that we use at the plant sale. This is a major expense and takes a good portion of our profits.

Thanks to Billie, who spent many hours contacting local businesses for donations to the Garden Club, there's not only enough to pay for the tent, but for all the tables as well.

We would like to thank and recognize all those businesses that were kind enough to donate. The businesses which donated are as follows:

- The Ball Seed Company
- Fox Valley Volkswagen
- The Jel-Sert Company
- Northstar Credit Union
- United Parcel Service

 * April Showers bring May Flowers by Carol Massat of The Growing Place *
 * *****

* Warm weather annuals can be found at garden centers very early (The Growing Place offers them *
 * the first weekend of May.) but they must be kept warmer than 40 degrees to avoid damage or stall- *
 * ing of growth. Warm weather annuals include: impatiens, begonias, caladiums, marigolds and many * * more. Cool weather flowers have been available since early April and include: all perennials and *
 * annual petunias, allysum, pansies, dianthus, dusty miller, diascia, stocks, callibrachoa and nemesia *
 * to name a few. Those plants can handle temperatures down to freezing. After May 15th there is less * * likelihood of frost although the last chance for frost is May 24th! Be ready to listen to the weather and * * plan to cover warm weather annuals with a sheet or plastic if needed. Tomatoes, peppers and basil *
 * are also very cold sensitive. *
 * *
 * Be sure to plant the right plants in the right places. Other considerations for selecting flowering * * plants include light conditions and moisture preferences. As you plan and plant your containers, * * consider the conditions your flowers enjoy. Group moisture loving plants together so that they re- * * ceive the right conditions to thrive. Place containers of moist tolerant plants where you can reach * * them easily. In the midst of our hot summers, you may have to water them twice a day. Consider *
 * creating drought tolerant arrangements for your *
 * hot sunny spots with plants such as sedum, hens *
 * and chicks and other succulents. Check signage *
 * or ask for assistance from experienced sales as- *
 * sociates when you visit your local garden center. *
 * *
 * May is a great time to help the environment too! *
 * The plants you select can help improve the * * environment. All plants clean the air but some * * of them help even more by being an important *
 * source for pollinators, hummingbirds and * * butterflies. The Growing Place has added native *
 * plants that are showy and well mannered. Try *
 * adding some to your gardens this year. *
