AMARYLLIS -Who knew it was so easy? By Elaine McCluskey

Last November I bought my first amaryllis bulb, not knowing how easy it would be to grow and how much I'd enjoy it, all the way through April when it rebloomed! Here are some tips (courtesy of U of I Extension Service) if you've never tried it:

“When buying a bulb, select one that is at least 2 1/2 inches in diameter. Smaller bulbs will not bloom. Larger bulbs (4 inches) produce better, often developing two flower stalks instead of one. Make sure the bulbs are firm and free of soft spots and discoloration.

Plant the bulbs in a container that has drainage holes. The container should be about two inches bigger in diameter than the bulb. The planting mix should drain well; an equal mix of peat and perlite would be suitable. Plant so that about one third of the bulb shows above the soil level. After planting, the planting mix should be thoroughly watered. Keep the mix consistently moist. The mix should not be saturated. Do not water over the nose of the bulb. If water seeps into the bulb, it may cause it to rot.

Keep the bulb in a warm room (70-75 F) during rooting and early stalk development. As the flower buds begin to form, reduce temperatures to about 65 F to prolong flowering. The bulb should be kept in a well-lighted area. During flowering, the plant is best kept in bright, but indirect light. This will help prolong flowering.

During stalk development, fertilize with a complete fertilizer (one that contains nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium). A liquid fertilizer is easiest to apply since the plant is in a small quantity of potting mix. Follow the label directions that come with the fertilizer you buy. The directions will tell you how much to use. Fertilize about every 2-3 weeks.

With proper care, the plant should be flowering within 6-8 weeks after planting the bulb. Duration of the flowers will be dependent on the temperature and light level in the room where the plant is being kept. As each flower fades, cut it off, so that the plant does not waste energy trying to produce seeds. After all the flowers have faded, remove the entire flower stalk. Do not remove the leaves. They will produce food and strengthen the bulb so that it can flower again next year.”

News from Kruse

Our Kruse House coordinators, having put the garden to bed, are busy with family and friends. We'll hear more from them in the new year - many thanks for the great leadership they provide all year, and for the service they help us provide to the West Chicago Historical Society.

Program Survey Results by Pauline Briggs, Co-Program Chair

At the October meeting, we Program Chairs asked attendees to comment on this year's programs. We collected 19 questionnaires, with one mailed in! That's well over 1/2 the people that attended the meeting, quite good results for a survey. Many people put a lot of thought into their answers, for which we thank you. Here is a summary of what was submitted:

2012 Program Favorites

Not much of a surprise here, Bulb Bingo got 13 votes. Hummingbirds got 7. Dave Wanninger got 6 votes. The speaker on Shade Gardening and the November Auction tied with 4 votes. The Growing Place speaker on Vertical Gardening and the Master Gardener talk on Body Smart Gardening did less well.

Program Wish List

There were lots of suggestions. Bulb/Plant/Something Similar Bingo was a clear winner. We'll do it again next year. When you lump some answers together, people definitely want to see more field trips. Not sure if June or I want to take that on in addition to programs. Is there someone out there who would like to plan a field trip or two a year? A few people mentioned anything by Dave Wanninger was enjoyable. We'll try to get him back again next year. Containers, hostas, and unusual plants were each suggested by 2 different people. Your Board members also came up with some good suggestions at the last Board meeting. We'll see what we can do.

What people like about the club

The friendly, social, knowledgeable, etc... people were what got mentioned a lot. Well, everyone knows gardeners are just nice people. Also, people seem to be learning as much from the members as from the programs. And, many members mentioned they enjoyed working together on the plant sale.

Suggestions

There were many good suggestions, and a number of compliments. People would like to see the Club membership grow. Make sure you are welcoming to new members. Keith got a personal mention as doing a good job.

Hope you all enjoy seeing the results as much as I did. As Program Co-Chair, it was very gratifying.
Thank you.
